Purpose

The North Central Forest Landowners Association, Inc., is the largest of 27 in Pennsylvania representing approximately 200 members and 200,000 acres in the four county area.

- Educate members and others about information, methods and benefits of proper forest management and to exchange ideas.
- Emphasize awareness of best forest management practices to sustain the forest and meet each landowners objectives including recreational, economic and conservation.
- The association's educational efforts, in cooperation with DCNR Bureau of Forestry and Penn State Cooperative Extension considers a wide variety of ownership objectives and recognizes the importance of forests to the North Central Region.

Who is it for?

This association is geared toward private forest landowners and those interested in learning more about forest and wildlife management practices and resources. This is an opportunity to meet with other private forest landowners who have similar experiences that may help you identify and/or meet your own forest and wildlife management objectives.

What are we doing?

Each meeting usually has an educational component. Since the NCFLA consists of forest landowners, discussions focus on matters concerning our forest lands. Meeting subjects could range from:

- timber management
- timber sales contracts
- soil erosion control
- insects, pests
- disease outbreaks
- forest land taxation
- available markets
- landowner liabilities
- oil, gas and mineral rights/leases

A website is maintained by the NCFLA which contains the latest information, a calendar of events, past and present newsletters and links to other forest related organizations.
